

Hermès gets set for summer with Twilly Eau Ginger

Hermès has added a third fragrance to its Twilly d'Hermès fragrance franchise. Twilly Eau Ginger is housed in the same, square flacon with rounded shoulders as the original Twilly d'Hermès, this time lacquered a sunny yellow.

Twilly Eau Ginger is the third addition to the the Twilly d'Hermès fragrance franchise. The EdP, created by house perfumer Christine Nagel, blends notes of peony, candied ginger, and cedar.

The square flacon with rounded shoulders is lacquered yellow (Pochet du Courval) and topped with a bulk-dyed, lacquered white cap (Axilone). A silk ribbon (Oriol & Fontanel) adorns the neck of the bottle: the silk length is hand-sewn with a matching thread onto an injected ring (Axilone) clipped onto the base of the cap.

The fragrance box is printed with the brand's Astrologie Nouvelle design.

Twilly Eau Ginger comes in 30ml, 50ml and 85ml formats.
